SUCCESS FOR ASIF

Mr Paul Asif has made significant progress in terms of ensuring social progress in Darwan. Today, at the Parliament, Mr Asif revealed the hard work that the government of Darwan has led. It is clear that the Social Evolution Party, led expertly by Mr Asif is the political party of progress. The Interventionist Party, in contrast, has developed a reputation of fanciful ideas that can never be based in reality. Ideas backed by the Interventionist Party include Universal Basic Income, free bank accounts for all, free education from nursery to senior school, free university tuition fees, compulsory pension payments by employers an an end to zero-hour contracts. These are clearly laughable ideas and all ideas that would result in the destruction of Darwan's economy. Mr Asif is right to call these ideas "ridiculous".

Traditional Parenting Styles

by Jonathan Morrison

It is clear that there are significant benefits when mothers stay at home with their children.

Mr Asif announced today that more women than ever before were choosing to stay at home and care for their children. Mr Asif commented, "It is just fantastic to see that so many women have made the right choice for their families to remain at home. This is the traditional way of things. Men should go to work as is their traditional role. Women are care givers: their place is in the home."

Women from all ethnic groups have made the choice to remain at home. This has helped their families to save money which they may have had to spend on child care.

The Social Evolution Party really is the party of the people and of progress. Family is so very important and Mr Asif understands this.

Building Self-Reliance

by Richard Johnson

The government has always adopted an individualistic approach to society and the economy of Darwan.

Nanny states do not work and if the government does not actively encourage self-reliance and resilience, Darwan will become a country of lazy people with little ambition while the economy will collapse. Who wants this? Not Mr Asif and the Social Evolution Party.

"People really do need to start thinking creatively about how they can help themselves and become more resilient."

-- Mr David Smith, Minister for Work

If we give people too much help, they become too reliant on that help. We need Darwan to be a nation of strivers and achievers. If people choose to become homeless, choose to take drugs or drink alcohol to excess, choose not to work hard at school, choose to not work hard at school, because of their poor decision making, then that is their choice. If the government involves itself too much in the decision making of its citizens, this is taking away the freedom of the people. The Interventionist Party wants to control the people with its social and economic policies. Mr Asif and the Social Evolution Party are all about evolution...social progress. We are excited to see how Darwan moves forward over the next few years.
